THREE DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE NIAGARA.

GREAT EXCITEMENT IN PARIS.

TROUBLE IN FLORENCE.

COUNTER REVOLUTION IN PORTUGAL.

COTTON STEADY.

Dates: Liverpool June 7, London 6, Paris 5.

The Royal Mail Steamer Niagara arrived yesterday morning at 7 o'clock.

The Niagara, on the 17th inst., lat. 43° 36, long. 57, spoke U. S. steamer Washington. 19th, 4:30 A. M., passed R. M. steamer Asia, Juddkins, hence.

The news from the Continent is interesting and important.

Nothing new in England.

GREAT BRITAIN.

In Parliament members had been conversing largely upon several subjects, but none were of importance.

There had been a brilliant conversation at the Mansion House, on occasion of the Great Exhibition. All the celebrities, foreign and domestic, were present.

The preparations for the reception of the Queen in the city will involve an expense of £4,000 or £5,000. On that occasion the Queen will knight the Mayor. It is expected to the visit that the day appropriated is the anniversary of the death of Sir Robert Peel.

The day before the sailing of the steamer the receipts at the Crystal Palace amounted to £2,500 16s., and £18 18s. from the sale of season tickets, which still continues. By the police returns 55,254 people visited the Crystal Palace, and the proportion of the proportion of whom were evidently from the country.

Prince Albert has declined the invitation to go to Birmingham with the Great Exhibition excursion.

Bachell is playing in London.

The following letter has been addressed to the Common Council of the City of London:

FOREIGN OFFICE, May 27, 1851.

Sir—I am directed by Viscount Palmerston to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 22d inst., enclosing a copy of a resolution passed on the previous day, by Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty, of the City of London, assenting to the General's amendment, that the bill should be introduced in the House of Commons.

The General's amendment had proposed to extend the benefit to the soldiers who had been wounded in combating the revolution of 1830, and Colonel Charpentier, whose ascent of the tribune aroused general attention, in reply to an allusion of M. Masier de Montjau, said that the decoration of the soldiers who had fought at the Chateau d'Eau was not a corollary of his own dismission. He had, on the contrary, strongly recommended the measure. M. Baroche made a confused reply.

General Changarnier, whose ascent of the tribune caused general attention, in reply to an allusion of M. Masier de Montjau, said that the police had been sent by post instead of by an orderly, but he had been examining the signature and seal he could not doubt that it was really sent from the Bureau of the Intendance. Before executing it, however, he went to the Intendant and showed him it. That functionary also examined the seal and signature as he, and he was more surprised that it should have been sent by post instead of by an orderly, but he had been examining the signature and seal he could not doubt that it was really sent from the Bureau of the Intendance. Before executing it, however, he went to the Intendant and showed him it. That functionary also examined the seal and signature as he, and he was more surprised that it should have been sent by post instead of by an orderly, but he had been examining the signature and seal he could not doubt that it was really sent from the Bureau of the Intendance.
